Call of interest for participation in the development of the European Diploma in HIV Medicine

EACS is developing a European Diploma in HIV Medicine. The diploma will be designed as an examination that will ensure minimum standards of education and training in HIV Medicine whilst promoting the delivery of a uniform standard of clinical care in the field of HIV Medicine. The development of this examination will be in partnership with the Royal College of Physicians in Ireland (RCPI) which will provide end-to-end candidate management and examination administration.

The European Diploma in HIV Medicine Examination Board is launching an open call to join them.

A faculty of specialists in HIV have developed the core curriculum and an Examination Board has been convened. In addition, there will be opportunities to contribute to the examination and to join one of the committees. The activities will include content development, peer review, and defining standards for academic performance.

There are three key areas where the Examination Board wishes to recruit contributors. These are:

- Examination board members
- Question development panelists
- Standard setters

Life4me+ launches the "Stay on ART" project

Life4me+ has launched an international project to enable access to ART when abroad.

Moving to another country or temporary labor migration is not necessarily easy and presents many challenges. One of them is to make sure you are able to continue taking care of your health. The "Stay on ART" project provides answers to the most frequently asked questions, based on experience and thousands of requests.

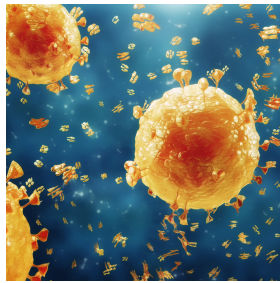

- Is it possible to carry antiretroviral therapy with you?
- How and where to get ART?
- Is it possible to buy treatment in pharmacies?
- Where to go for support in emergency situations?

On the project website www.stayonart.com it provides step-by-step algorithms for obtaining medical care and ART, brief instructions for completing the necessary documents, useful links and contacts for public organizations ready to provide assistance.
